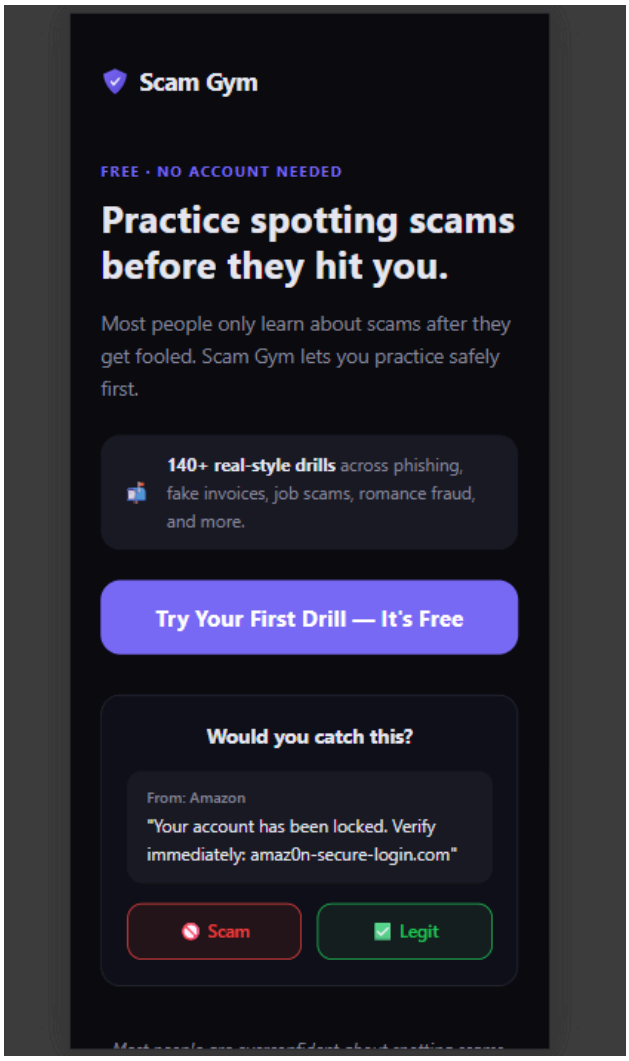
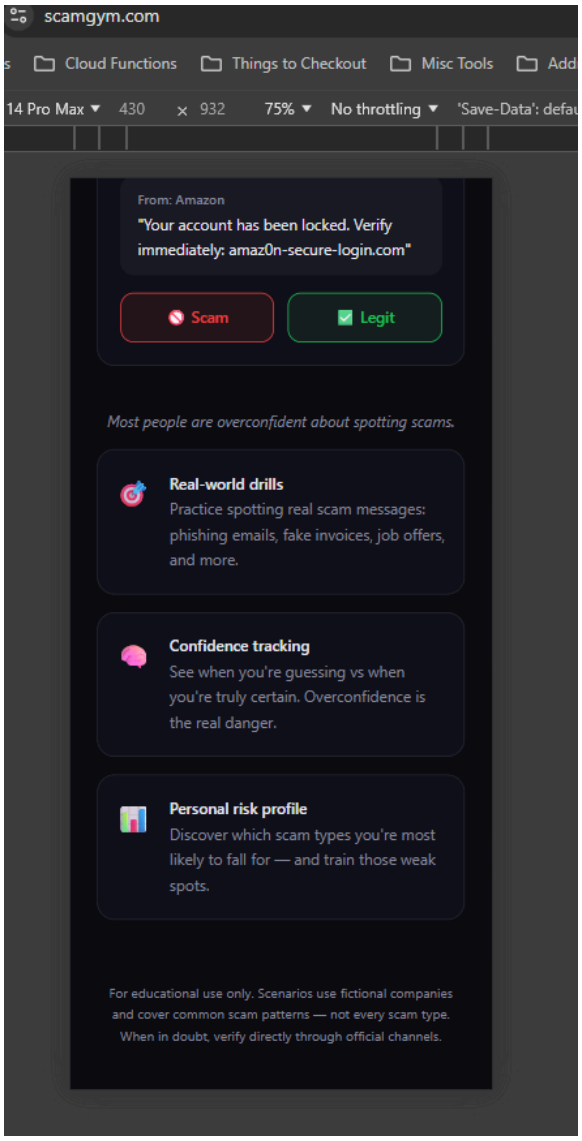
New User Flow





Practice spotting scams before they hit you.

Most people only learn about scams after they get fooled. Scam Gym lets you practice safely first.

140+ real-style drills across phishing, fake invoices, job scams, romance fraud, and more.

HOW SCORING WORKS
Being wrong isn't the only danger. Being confident and wrong is.
Scam Gym tracks not just whether you got it right — it tracks how sure you were. Clicking a phishing link while 95% confident is far more dangerous than pausing and saying "I'm not sure."
Overconfident
Wrong + sure = danger zone

YOUR SAFE MOVE
If someone asks you to read back a verification code, stop. That code is for your account — they're trying to break in.
HOW TO VERIFY
1. Check: did YOU request this verification code?
2. If not, someone may be trying to access your account — change your password
3. Enable two-factor authentication on your accounts
NEVER DO THIS
Never send money, gift cards, or cryptocurrency to someone you haven't verified
Never share passwords, PINs, or 2FA codes — no real company asks for these
Never click links in messages that create urgency or fear
Never call phone numbers provided in a suspicious message
Never give remote access to your computer or phone

GREEN FLAGS

✓ Sent from carrier's official domain

✓ Includes specific order and tracking numbers

✓ Tracking link points to carrier's own domain

✓ No payment or fee requested

WHAT TO DO

Track the package by navigating directly to the carrier's official website. If you don't recognize the order, contact the merchant by searching for their official website independently — do not use contact details from the email.

Legitimate shipping emails come from the carrier's official domain and include specific order numbers — no fees or login required.

Hey! I manage social media for several brands and I'm looking for brand ambassadors. You'd post 2–3 times a week about products and earn $300–$500/week. Just need to buy a starter product bundle at a discount ($129) to get familiar with the line. DM me 'INTERESTED' to start!

YOU WERE RIGHT TO BE SUSPICIOUS
If you had engaged, victims who pay may receive products they cannot sell, and the promised weekly income typically never materializes.
Scammers send this to thousands of people — betting some actually use the service. That's the trap. Even if it sounds plausible, verify through an official source before acting.

SCAM
Real brand ambassadors are not required to purchase products upfront — any arrangement requiring payment to work is an MLM structure or outright scam.
THE TELLS
→ Legitimate brand partnerships provide products for free as part of a paid arrangement — requiring purchase is a red flag
→ Paying for a 'starter bundle' is typically the actual business model in these schemes — the promised weekly income is the fiction used to justify it
→ Real brand ambassador programs are run through official company channels, not unsolicited personal DMs
→ Unverifiable income promises are commonly used to make an upfront cost feel reasonable
